The Academy of Korean Studies 한국학중앙연구원 is a South Korean research and educational institute having the defined purpose of establishing profound research on Korean culture. It was established on June 22, 1978, by the South Korean Ministry of Education & Science & Technology of South Korea 교육과학기술부. One of the primary functions of the Academy is its dedication to the interpretation and analysis of traditional Korean culture. In doing so, it seeks to clearly define the academic identity of Korean studies, and to educate and engage scholars in its work.

The Sourcebook Series collects and coordinates primary data by subject in areas of research into modern Korean society and culture in an attempt to meet the academic interests of international students and scholars of Korea and its rapid achievements in industrialisation, democratisation, and social change. The Academy recognises that many important scholars and study programmes around the world possess enormous expertise the various fields in which the Academy is active, yet do not have the language skills needed to approach primary sources in Korean. Our aim in this series is help redress this imbalance in offering accurate, academic translations of key source material.

NORTH KOREAN MODERN HISTORY 1: A SOURCEBOOK

Ed: Suh, Dae-sook; Lee, Wan-bom; Lee, Seung-hyun (2018)

In most cases even the most basic documents relating to DPRK history are available only in the Korean language. North Korean authorities occasionally issue English versions of selected documents, but these translations are markedly inferior in quality. The purpose of this book is to collect and present basic documents which will help improve our understanding of North Korea's political and social traditions. No attempt is made to either praise or denigrate North Korea's accomplishments or failures: it is intended to assist in the analysis and understanding of the country.

THE KOREAN WAVE: A SOURCEBOOK; Ed: Hwang, Yun Mi; Stephen Epstein (2016)

The Korean Wave (한류 / 韓流; Hallyu), a neologism literally meaning "flow of Korea" is the increase in global popularity of South Korean culture since the 1990s. First driven by the spread of K-dramas and K-pop across East, South and Southeast Asia during its initial stages, the Korean Wave evolved from a regional development into a global phenomenon, carried by the Internet and social media and the proliferation of K-pop music videos on YouTube.

This volume consists of three main sections. Part 1, Institutional Contexts, Part 2, Industrial Operations, Part 3, International Reception.

THE SAEMAUL MOVEMENT: A SOURCEBOOK

Ed: Han, Do Hyun; Larry L. Burmeister (2015)

Saemaul Undong (新村運動 / New Village Movement), was a community-driven development programme pursued during the 1970s which aimed to overcome rural poverty. Ultimately, the true benefits lay not in tangible achievements, but rather in the sweeping change in the people's mentality. A national confidence infused with a "can-do" spirit was built that transformed chronic pessimism into new hope, a long-term shared vision of a better life for all, and an infectious enthusiasm sustained by mutual cooperation. This sourcebook provides a representative sample of original source documents of the Saemaul Undong experience now available for examination in several archival collections.

THE HISTORY OF EDUCATION IN KOREA: A SOURCEBOOK

Ed: Lee, Gilsang; Michael J Seth; Joo, Jae-Hong; Roh, Seunghyun (2015)

South Korea's educational development has been often held up as one of the world's most impressive success stories. Today South Korea is among the highest ranking countries in most comparative measures of education. Yet, at every stage of its development, South Korea's educational policies were subjected to criticism and often contentious debate. This book represents an impressive contribution to a better understanding of educational development. • Education under the U.S. Military Government in Korea 1945-1948 • Launch of New Government, the Korean War, and the Rehabilitation of Education 1948-1960 • A Period of Upheavals in Education Policy: 1960s+1970s • Reform Policies & Democratization Movement • Globalization+Neo-Liberalism • Dilemmas of School Education & Its New Challenges.

THE SOUTH KOREAN DEMOCRATIZATION MOVEMENT: A SOURCEBOOK

Ed: Lee, Namhee; Kim, Won (2016)

Here are the voices of South Koreans who dedicated their lives to the democratisation movement. Many have served prison terms, others even perished. From the early 1960s to the late 1980s, the movement toppled the authoritarian regime and ushered in a parliamentary democracy in 1987. It also produced an impressive array of documents and sources, which include manifestos that were read out loud before a demonstration; newsletters printed and circulated underground; pamphlets scattered on university campuses or on streets for a few seconds before a protest leader was apprehended and forcibly taken to a police station; letters written to family members while in prison; and poems, among other writings.

KOREAN CATHOLICISM AND PROTESTANTISM: A SOURCEBOOK

Ed: Hur, Nam-Lin; Cho, Hyeon Beom; Lee, You Na (2016)

Christianity is one of Korea's most important religions and an understanding of its acceptance by the people (11% are Catholic and 19% belong to a Protestant church) as well as its idiosyncrasies is indispensable for comprehending the complex contours of Korea's modern history. This sourcebook offers a convenient window for readers who are interested in the trajectory of Korean Christianity from its introduction to the present. It contains 62 documents on Catholicism and 64 documents on Protestantism. As a rare collection of original communiqués, letters, statements, firsthand accounts, and comments that span from 1883 to 2013, this sourcebook will surely help readers understand, through the inner voice, how Christianity has adapted itself to, influenced upon, and benefited from, the changing conditions of modern Korea. This is a key text for readers interested in both Korean religion and society.
